Active Official is Backed Up By Society—Greater Field of Work Is Planned.

The Humane Society held a called meeting Thursday afternoon at half past two o'clock in the offices of the agent of the society in the Gray building. Routine business was transacted, reports were read and the officer was directed to urge upon the courts the speedy collection of fines due the society; the mildness manifested in some cases was slightly criticised. By unanimous consent the annual membership dues of the society was made 25 cents. Humane Officer Jackson was congratulated upon the general effect of his work. Among the retive members present were Mrs. John McCall, Mrs. O. P. McGinnis, Mrs. L. J. Baker, Rev. H. T. Weber, Mrs. Mary Roche, the officer and counsel for the society. The humane officer was also instructed to place a sign in front of the Gray building that the general public may know where the office of the society is located.

CUBA IS ABLE TO TAKE CARE OF HER REBELS

No Need of Intervention By Uncle Sam or Others.

Havana, Aug. 24.—The government forces under Colonel Estrap are now in a fight with the rebels at Guines, 45 miles from Havana. It is officially stated this (Friday) morning that the government will pay $2 a day to volunteers.

Washington, Aug. 24.—Cuba is enabling volunteers and still asserts her ability to crush the revolutionary movement, according to a dispatch from Mr. Sleeper, the United States charge at Havana, to the state department. Mr. Sleeper says the outbreak has spread to Santa Clara and Matanzas provinces. Carlos Mondiet with 200 men is leading the insurrection in Santa Clara province, while the movement in Matanzas province is reported to be of little importance and the leader is unknown. The state department regards the dispatch as an indication that Cuba is fully able to look after its own interests, and there is no suggestion of intervention in Cuban affairs by the United States.

The Platt amendment, which defined the conditions in which the United States should withdraw from Cuba and turn the island over to the control of the Cuban people, provided that a part of the new republic's constitution should contain certain provisions concerning the future relations of the United States and Cuba. The third of these provisions was as follows: "That the government of Cuba consents that the United States may exercise the right to intervene for the preservation of Cuban independence, the maintenance of a government adequate for the protection of life, property and individual liberty, and for discharging the obligations which respect to Cuba imposed by the treaty of Paris on the United States now to be a named and undertaken by the government of Cuba."

John Bull Agitated.

London, Aug. 24.—Newspapers here print editorials on the situation in Cuba and specialise as to the probability of the United States being obliged to intervene to restore order. However, it is generally admitted that the United States government has no desire to take such a step, as it would mean the annexation of the island. The Daily Telegraph says that intervention would create something like ferment throughout the South American republics and would be exceedingly malapropos so soon after the International American congress, but that the interests of the United States in the islands are so great that, malapropos or not, public opinion in the United States certainly will not tolerate a prolonged and aimless rebellion, which would stultify all the good work accomplished there under American influence.

Hoke Smith's Victory.

Atlanta, a. Aug. 24.—Practically complete returns from all counties in the state show that Hoke Smith carried 118 counties for governor; R. B. Russell, 11; Clark Howell, 9; J. H. Estill, 1; and James M. Smith, 3. This will give each in the state convention which meets at Macon Sept. 4, the following vote, insuring the nomination of Hoke Smith on the first ballot by an overwhelming vote: Hoke Smith, 304; Russell, 26; Howell, 18; Estill, 12; J. M. Smith, 6.

Gum-Shoe Plan For Small Bridges

New Statute Permits Obscure Posters For Advertising Six New Bridges in County.

Because the late legislature worked in a sleeper in one of its bills, that bridges whose estimated cost shall be $1000 or under, there are to be erected in this county five bridges none of which are to be advertised except upon an obscure bulletin board in the corridor of the court house. Auditor Randles says there is no other course left open as Section 783 as revised specifically declares that bridges of this class shall not be advertised except upon a bulletin. The bids are to be received, so say the bulletin, at 10 a. m. Sept. 7 for the superstructure for the following bridges: Cox bridge in Virginia tp. Biggs, Dawson and Mooney bridges in Franklin tp. Lehighing bridge in Lafayette tp. and substructure for the Roberts bridge in Jackson township. All are estimated at less than $1000.

Zerbe Trial Goes Over

The case of the State of Ohio vs. J. P. Zerbe was called at 1:35 o'clock Friday afternoon. Chief Game Warden J. C. Porterfield and Attorney McMillen of Columbus represented the state. Attorneys Jos. McDowell and John C. Adams were retained by Mr. Zerbe. Miss Ethel Berry was the state stenographer and Miss Smith for the defense. The witnesses were C. H. Nye, special warden of Columbus, H. V. Saur, special warden of Beilfontaine, Alonzo Niums special warden of Adamsville, Lloyd Wine, special warden of Columbus. Atty. McDowell opened the case with a motion that the affidavit be quashed on account of the insufficient jury. The venire had only consisted of 10 men and the jury was only composed of 6. The defense asked for a jury of 12, from a venire of 16, and that the state bear the costs of the witnesses and jury summoned to day. This was granted by Mayor Smith after considerable argument on both sides.

The court was then dismissed to meet again one week from today. The court room was filled by a crowd of interested spectators in spite of the intense heat.

In Squire's Court. A writ of replevin was taken in Squire Wimmer's court Friday morning by William Clark for the lumber steen by Mike Fry. The lumber was found in the possession of Mr. Klein kneet and Mr. Elson. The hearing will take place next Thursday.

Envy Renshaw, who has been conducting the Salvation Army meetings in the city for several days left this morning for Salem where he will hold services.

Leaped From Train. Columbus, Aug. 21.—A demented epileptic, named Charles Gales, from Cleveland, created greatest excitement at the Union station Friday morning at about 8:30 o'clock, by attempting to escape from a deputy sheriff, Charles Kicks, of Cuyahoga county, and then attempting to commit suicide by throwing himself in front of an incoming train. Gales cut the large artery in his left wrist by jumping through a coach window, on train No. 11 of the Big Four, in his attempt to escape.

DICK SUGGESTS AN OPEN-DOOR MEETING

ON THE FLOOR OF CONVENTION THRESH IT OUT

Challenges Critics And Says Let Party Settle All Issues.

Akron, O., Aug. 24.—Senator Dick came out in an interview in which he makes some radical proposals for conducting the state convention at Dayton, evidently an indirect reply to some of his critics. Senator Dick declares in favor of making a platform for the convention in committee of the whole, in which all issues are to be debated and without the intervention of a committee on resolutions. As to the issue of the endorsement of the two Ohio senators, Senator Dick says he is willing that two resolutions shall be presented to the convention, one endorsing and the other censuring the senators, and the delegates choosing between them. The administration of President Roosevelt and the work of congress, he says, will be heartily and strongly endorsed unanimously.

After mentioning the matter of proposed tariff revision, the railroad rate regulation law, the proposed grain navy and the Philippine tariff bill, among the issues that should be passed upon by the convention in its resolutions, the senator continues: "I do not believe that putting hides on the free list is a great political issue in Ohio, nor am I concerned because of personal and unfair attacks on the prompt by those who would sacrifice Republican principles, the welfare of the country and of our party to their own selfish interests. I am, however, willing to have this question submitted to the convention for determination, along with other questions, national or state, on which it is presumed or contended that the Republicans of the state are divided. Let the convention, which is thoroughly representative and the highest authority in the state, decide on each and every question about which there may be any controversy whatever."

He also declared in favor of change in the rules of the party organization, and suggests that the committee on rules bring in a rule providing for the election of the chairman of the state executive committee by the convention itself in the same manner that candidates for state officers are named.

S. L. Connor, manager of the Dorchester Lumber company's stores at Badham, was notified by a negro that he saw another negro attempting to enter a window of his home and then ran away into a nearby cane patch. Connor immediately started for his home, going through the cane field. He suddenly came upon Spain and grappled with the negro, striking him a severe blow, breaking several bones in his hand. The negro finally freed himself and ran into nearby woods. Connor notified his neighbors, and about two hours later Spain was captured and locked up in jail. Shortly afterward a posse of 40 or 50 men went to the sheriff and, securing the keys to the jail, took the negro to the house of Connor, where his 11-year-old daughter positively identified the negro as the one who had tried to climb through the window.

Higgins Wants a Renomination For Governor of New York.

New York, Aug. 24.—William Barnes, Jr., chairman of the executive committee of the Republican state committee, after a conference with Governor Higgins came to New York and announced that the governor is a candidate for renomination. "Governor Higgins," said Barnes, "is a candidate for renomination. He never chased after a nomination and he is not chasing after a renomination. He is a candidate for renomination, but he does not demand the honor from the state convention. Friends of Governor Higgins will control the state convention and nominate him."

Dead Sparrows Poison a City

Three Oaks, Mich., Aug. 24.—The cause of an epidemic of typhoid fever among the inhabitants of this place was discovered when a member of the board of health climbed to the top of the water works stand-pipe and found the dead bodies of several thousand sparrows, in various stages of decomposition, covering the surface of the water. Immediately the mayor gave instructions to empty the stand-pipe, scrub and paint it. Hundreds of sparrows' nests were built on a ledge that runs around the summit of the stand-pipe, and the young birds are supposed to have fallen into the uncovered stand-pipe while trying to fly. The cover made for the stand-pipe when it was constructed was never put on. There are 21 cases of typhoid fever in the town.

Miss Jeanette...

Driven Insane By Tormentors

New Philadelphia, O., Aug. 21.—The officials of Tuscarawas county are much mystified over the report of the finding of the body of George Grazer, a soldier at Zoar. The coroner this morning stated that he had received no word of a body being found, and that he had been in communication with the authorities at Zoar who could, however, give no information. Brand Story Fake. He shows no hesitancy in branding the story as a fake, growing out of the discovery of Private George Grover of Hicksville, a member of the Second regiment, wandering June 15, 1906, near the camp at Zoar. It is said that he was found by the tormentors of his companions in the First Brigade Camp and wandered away from the baggage detail, of which he was a member, Monday night. Suffering From Hunger. He was in a serious condition from exposure and hunger. Grover was a new member of the company and of such a disposition as to be greatly affected by the hazards to which he is said to have been subjected. He and a number from the camp were at the Zoar hotel, Monday night, and Grover was the butt of a number of jokes. On the way to the camp he suddenly ran into a cornfield. His conduct led his companions to think that he had been drunk, and that he had been subjected to some kind of punishment.

Washington Letter

Washington, Aug. 24.—The really serious side of the recent exposure concerning the meat packing industries, both to cattle growers, and to the country in general, is just coming to light, and as the figures are set forth by the latest report of the department of commerce and labor, they are not to be overlooked. There has been an enormous falling off in the meat exports; one which, if continued or spread to other industries, might well menace the trade of the country. The gravity of the situation is evidenced by the figures for while in July 1904 the canned meat exported amounted to 5,222,794 pounds, with a value of $342,168, the shipments during the month just ended shows only a total of 1,039,852 pounds with a value of $104,710. The real importance to the cattle raisers of an annual decrease of more than $3,200,000 is apparent. Even the exports of cattle were affected, since July 1905 saw exports of more than 45,000 head at a value of near $3,000,000, while last July showed a falling off of over 15,000 head, worth over $400,000—another item of $5,000,000 if carried out on an annual basis. It is believed, however, by local experts that the decrease will be only temporary. The honor of the government, it has recently been announced is more important than the conviction of a million criminals and while it does not follow that its foreign trade is more important than the eradication of even one evil, but rather to the contrary, since its honor is there involved, the situation is one which calls for the strenuous co-operation of all involved.

President Roosevelt's trip to Panama this fall, which in all probability will mark the ending of one and the beginning of another era of canal construction, is likely to have an eye-opening and remodeling effect on the big waterway. The chief executive is nothing if not outspoken and it seems likely that his trip will provide him with some new impressions of the tremendous difficulties in the path of the work—impressions which, it is safe to say, will be handed out to the public on his return. This should not be taken to mean that there will be any faltering in the work, or any weakening in its support, but only that the present fragmentary varied and often erroneous information concerning it will be supplanted by an honest conception, which is the thing most to be desired. Mr. Roosevelt, indeed, will occupy the position of investigator for the whole country. The need for such investigation, not in the spirit of antagonism but rather of truth, in order that the work may be intelligently supported, is patent. One has now simply to take his choice of the information which comes, to be sure that the canal will be finished in seven years, or that it will never be finished. In other words, there is a crying need for a statement of the whole truth from a reliable source, as it is generally admitted now that those reports which enthusiasm does not harmfully exaggerate in one way, personal dissatisfaction as harmfully distorts in the other. As affording an opportunity to supply this need against the day when possible discouragement might otherwise become too strong, the importance of the president's trip can hardly be overestimated.

Just where the calamity howlers can find anything to howl about in present conditions, it is hard to say. Income, exports, imports, crops and manufactures are all at a high tide of prosperity such as this country has never witnessed before. On top of all this comes the report of the department of commerce and labor showing that during the year just ended pay was higher and there were more plentiful jobs than ever before, to say nothing of no increase of hours. Corporations may not be extremely popular at present, but the fact remains that to them is due in a large part the condition which enabled men to draw higher wages than in any preceding year of the country's history. To put the statement into figures wages were 1.5 per cent greater. In other words there were 106 people to receive higher wages in 1905 in place of the 104 who received lower wages in 1904. The cost of food increased in 1905, it is true, but nowhere near the same amount as did wages, for its increased cost was only six-tenths of 1 per cent, thus leaving the workingman a clear advance of 1 per cent. That is, an hour's wages and 6.3 per cent more people had a chance to do the purchasing. If the figures be carried back further the steady increase is more readily seen, for the average wages per hour in 1905 were 18.9 cents, as against 17.90 in 1904, while in 1903 they were 17.00, and in 1902 16.00.

These figures are compiled only in industries paying over $10,000,000 a year in wages—that is, as a general thing large corporations—but they show the general degree of prosperity. The only workers who are not rejoicing are the employees of the largest corporation of all—the United States government—and those of municipal corporations, for it is a fact sad but true, as witnessed by the experience of many government employees here, that the wages paid by any form of government, federal or municipal, remain practically stationary. The only wage earners included in the report, indeed, who have not enjoyed the advance are those either in the employ of Uncle Sam or of states and municipalities. The comparison becomes particularly strong when it is noted that as soon as a municipality engages in the conduct of any business, the material increase in wages which is found under private ownership at once disappears to say nothing of the conduct of the business on a healthy competitive basis.

"Nicotine free" cigars are, according to advices received by the state department, the latest thing in Germany. Whether children may now puff perfects without injury remains to be seen, but that innovations of any kind are to be tried on the cigars manufactured in the land of Emperor William will bring joy to the heart of all Americans who have ever tried them. Consul Hurst in reporting on these innovations, naively remarks that in spite of the fact that German cigars are light, there has been considerable local agitation as to the harmful effects of smoking—a statement which will receive the instant and hearty approbation of Mark Twain and all other Americans who have undergone the pain of smoking a German alleged cigar. Some factories in Germany, according to the report, are now producing cigars known as "free of nicotine" and "poor of nicotine," which are gaining in popular estimation, largely on account of the general misconception as to nicotine itself. As a matter of fact, however, while the new brands gain the approbation of those who disapprove of smoking certain makes of these cigars, really contain more nicotine than the ordinary cigarette tobacco. Whether the whole affair is merely a trade advertisement, the report refrains from saying, but it does make clear the fact that German cigar inspectors have as large a field in which to get busy as have the foot and meat experts who threw up their hands in holy horror at the condition of affairs existing in the United States, a condition which subsequent revelations have shown may be found in Germany, too.

Secretary Shaw and Treasurer Treat, who are naturally interested in the existing shortage of silver and silver coins, may get a bit of free education from the rather interesting ray of light shed on the possible cause of the present needs of these articles, especially the latter, of which there is a pressing scarcity. From the remarks of an official recently returned from China, who through experience, has become conversant in the ways of the slant-eyed Mongolians, it seems, according to this official's statement, that the Chinaman is an expert in extracting the insides of all the silver coins which he can get, filling up the vacancy thus caused with a base metal, and after putting the coin into circulation again, using the silver extracted for his own personal benefit. Naturally, the United States affords a fine field for obtaining silver money, and although figures cannot, from the nature of things, be obtained, it is probable that many of the country's smaller pieces are withdrawn from circulation here by Chinamen. Their method of obtaining the silver from the inside of the coin is delicate and interesting. The rim, or milled edge, is neatly cut off without being mutilated. Likewise the two faces of the coin are thus removed. The chunk of silver from the center thus freed is abstracted, a clean filling inserted the coin put together again and sent on its way with rejoicing on the part of the operator, if not of Uncle Sam who is beginning to be somewhat uneasy at his shortage of small change.

Sailing the Seas of Air

AS A HUGE BIRD OF PREY

With the Improvements Made Captain Knabenshue is Now Able to Fly During the Most Turbulent Weather, and to Prove That He is Complete Master of the Craft Will Make Daily Excursions to the City, Concluding These Voyages by Rounding the Dome of the State Capitol—An Exciting Test of Speed, Engaging an Automobile in a Race With the Aerial Craft, a Feature of This Exhibition.

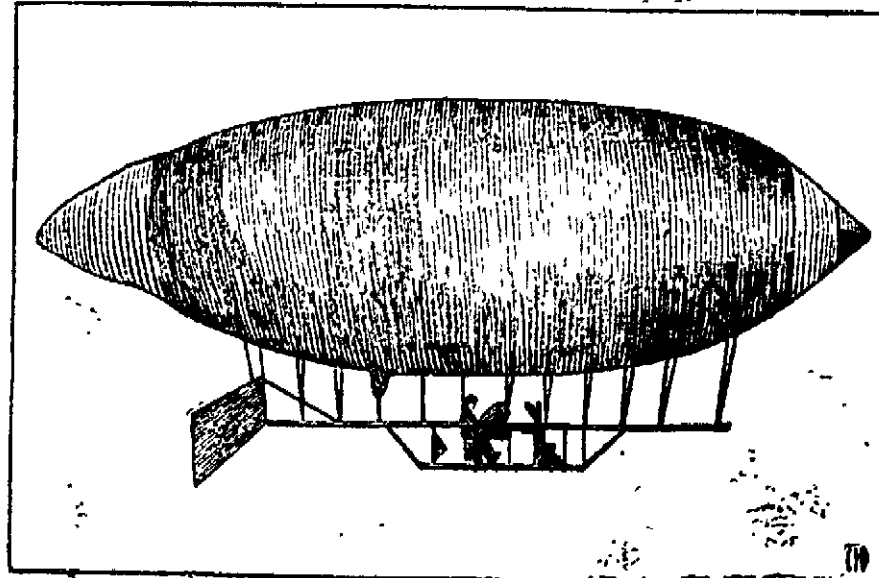

Incredible as it may seem, it was just ten years ago that the Ohio State Board of Agriculture, in seeking the latest and best attractions to be featured at the Ohio State Fair, contracted with an Indiana firm for exhibiting and giving practical demonstrations of the then so-called "horseless vehicles." Five machines, including three pleasure vehicles, a heavy transfer wagon and a light runabout, were exhibited, and the vast crowds attracted stood in bewilderment, as with a steady "chug, chug," the machines gracefully glided around the race course. Since that time the improvements made on these have been such that today, instead of a pleasure toy for the wealthy, automobiles are recognized necessities and are in use in all classes of trade where horses were formerly employed. This triumph in method of transportation has in the last few years been overshadowed by one which gives promise to completely revolutionize this question, and while perhaps the people generally will give little credence to the statement, it will be only a matter of a few years until airships will be as common as automobiles, and freight and passengers will be carried through the air on monstrous air-line vessels.

For over two hundred years scientific men have endeavored to solve the problem of aerial navigation, and we are now practically upon the threshold of success. Ohio stands strongly in the limelight in solving this seemingly unattractive problem, as a native Buckeye son, A. Roy Knabenshue, is today universally recognized as the premier aerial navigator of the world, and it was less than one month ago that he triumphantly sailed around the Washington monument at the nation's capital, while on the 6th inst. he established a new record for long-distance flights by sailing from New York city to Boston, a distance of nearly three hundred miles.

During the continuance of the Ohio State Fair last year, Captain Knabenshue daily demonstrated to vast crowds the feasibility of aerial navigation, and the interest displayed in his contracted with him for daily exhibitions at the coming Ohio State Fair, to be held in Columbus, September 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7. There can be no disappointments this year, as Captain Knabenshue spent the past winter in California perfecting the mechanism of the craft, and with the improvement made is now able to sail the seas of air during the most turbulent weather. The new machine is a model of simplicity, combined with strength and lightness, and retains but few of the features embodied in the vessel used last year. The gas bag is constructed of 700 yards of the finest Japanese silk, imported especially for this purpose, and has a capacity of 7,500 cubic feet of hydrogen gas. To insure the greatest safety to the operator, the silk is sewed in squares as bricks are set in a wall, so that in case of accident a seam could rip but a short distance, allowing but a small quantity of gas to escape, and enabling the navigator to descend gently to the earth. A marked improvement has been made in the rigging of the craft, and instead of the long, ladder-like framework running the entire length of the gas envelope, everything is now compact, the carrying car or rigging being but ten feet long. The car is equipped with cushioned seats, the operator being able to man the vessel with the same comfort and ease as is enjoyed were he slumming over the waters in his private yacht. Knabenshue considers this the most potent feature of the improvements made, as heretofore he was forced to stridle the rigging and was in constant danger lost a sudden lurch of the vessel should precipitate him to an untimely end. The propeller and aeroplane, formerly located at either end of the gas envelope, are now directly above the carrying car, giving less resistance to the wind and increasing the speed of the ship. A remarkable piece of mechanism of the craft is the gasoline engine which furnishes the propelling power. The engine, while weighing but ninety pounds, is of ten-horse power, and was constructed in its entirety by Captain Knabenshue.

A Model Strike.

The printers' "model strike" has clinched its right to claim that title, says the Chicago News. The strike pickets have organized a temperance society. It is independent of the milk wagon drivers' total abstinence organization, which Steve Sumner, the drivers' business agent has been building for two years or more. The printers' totalitarians' order admits only strikers to membership, and in this it has outdone any other like effort—for the strike, being a cause of idleness of men, is usually recognized as a cause of frequenting saloons and consequent intemperance. The other causes which contribute to the title "model strike" may be briefly summarized thus:

The strike has decreased the death rate of the union membership by half. It added from ten to twenty-five pounds to the weight of the individual strikers leading outdoor life. The only case of glugging recorded against the pickets was one proved to have been provoked by the non-union victim.

When one of the pickets went home from a saloon after drinking stout and beat his wife the union refused to aid in his defense.

The Peach Crop.

The peach crop of 1906 will go down in history as the largest in the history of this country if present indications hold out to verify the opinions of experts on the subject. In Georgia alone the shipping output is expected to amount to 2,500 car loads, the state entomologist estimating these figures against 2,500 cars in 1905. Indications point to an immense crop in Ohio this year.

"But it lies with your majesty to undo the mischief that has been done."

"And how?"

"By recalling the edict."

"And driving into the open arms of my enemies 2,000,000 of my best artisans and of my bravest servants. How say you, Louvois?"

"With all respect to the church, sire, I would say that the devil has given these men such cunning of hand and of brain that they are the best workers and traders in your majesty's kingdom. I know not how the state coffers are to be filled if such taxpayers go from among us."

"But," remarked Bossuet, "if it were once known that the king's will had been expressed your majesty may rest assured that even the worst of his subjects bear him such love that they would hasten to come within the pale of the holy church."

The king shook his head. "They have always been stubborn folk," said he. "Perhaps," remarked Louvois, glancing maliciously at Bossuet, "were the bishops of France to make an offering to the state of the treasures of their sees we might then do without these Huguenot taxes."

"The kingdom is mine and all that is in it," remarked Louis as they entered the grand salon in which the court assembled after chapel, "yet I trust that it may be long before I have to claim wealth of the church. Where is Mazarin? I must see his plans for the newwaving at Marly."

"I think," said Pere la Chaise, drawing Bossuet aside, "that your grace has made some impression upon the king's mind."

"With your powerful assistance, father."

"But there is another who has more weight than I—Mme. de Maintenon."

"I hear that she is very devout."

"Very. But she has no love for my order. She is a Sulpician. Yet we may all work to one end. Now, if you were to speak to her, your grace. Show her how good a service it would be could she bring about the banishment of the Huguenots."

"I shall do so."

"And offer her in return that we will promote"—He bent forward and whispered into the prelate's ear.

"What! He would not do it?"

"And why? The queen is dead."

"The widow of the poet-Scarron?"

"She is of good birth. Her grandfather, and his were dear friends. If she will serve the church, the church will serve her. But the king beckons, and I must go."

The dark figure vanished on through the throng of courtiers, and the great bishop of Meaux remained standing with his chin upon his breast, sunk in reflection.

CHAPTER V.

THE elderly Huguenot had stood silent after his repulse by the king, with his eyes cast moodily downward and a face in which doubt, sorrow and anger contended for the mastery. He was a very large, gaunt man, rawboned and haggard, with a wide forehead, a large, fleshy nose and a powerful chin. He was dressed as became his rank, plainly and yet well, in a sad colored brown kersey coat with silver plated buttons, knee breeches of the same and white woolen stockings, ending in broad toed black leather shoes cut across with a great steel buckle.

His doubts as to what his next step should be were soon resolved for him in a very summary fashion. These were days when, if the Huguenot was not absolutely forbidden in France, he was at least looked upon as a man who existed upon sufferance, and who was unshielded by the laws which protected his Catholic fellow subjects. For twenty years the stringency of the persecution had increased until there was no weapon which bigotry could employ, short of absolute expulsion, which had not been turned against him.

Two of the king's big blue coated guardsmen were on duty at that side of the palace and had been witnesses to his unsuccessful appeal. Now they tramped across together to where he was standing and broke brutally into the current of his thoughts.

"Now, Hymnbooks," said one gruffly, "get off again about your business."

The old Huguenot shot a glance of astonishment at them and at them stood at his side with the best and of his kind.

"Take that, you dog!" he cried.

"Would you dare to look like that at the king's guard?"

"Children of Belial!" cried the old man, with his hand pressed to his side, "were I twenty years younger you would not have dared to use me so."

"Ha, you would still spit your venom, would you? That is enough, Andre! He has threatened the king's guard. Let us seize him and drag him to the guardroom."

The two soldiers dropped their halberds and rushed upon the old man, but, tall and strong as they were, they found it no easy matter to secure him. They had hardly won their pitiful victory, however, before a stern voice and a sword flashing before their eyes compelled them to release their prisoner once more.

It was Captain de Catnat, who, his morning duties over, had strolled out on the terrace and had come upon this sudden scene of outrage. At the sight of the old man's face he gave a violent start and, drawing his sword, had rushed forward with such fury that the two guardsmen not only dropped their victim, but, staggering back from the threatening sword point, one of them slipped and the other rolled over him, a revolving mass of blue coat and white kersey.

"Villains!" roared De Catnat. "What is the meaning of this?"

The two had stumbled to their feet again, very shamefaced and rattled.

"If you please, captain," said one, saluting, "this is a Huguenot who abused the royal guard."

"His petition had been rejected by the king, captain, and yet he refused to go."

De Catnat was white with fury. "And so when a French citizen has come to leave a word with the great master of his country he must be harassed by two Swiss dogs like you?" he cried. "By my faith, we shall soon see about that!"

He drew a little silver whistle from his pocket, and at the shrill summons an old sergeant and half a dozen soldiers came running from the guardroom.

"Sergeant, you will arrest these men."

one side, and he was able to catch a glimpse of the Catnat house.

It was surrounded on every side by an immense crowd.

The house of the Huguenot merchant was a tall, narrow building, standing at the corner of the Rue St. Martin and the Rue de Biron. It was four stories in height, grim and grave like its owner, with high peaked roof, long diamond paned windows, a framework of black wood, with gray plaster filling the interstices, and five stone steps which led up to the narrow and somber door. The upper story was, but a warehouse, in which the trader kept his stock, but the second, and third, were furnished with balconies edged with stout wooden balustrades. As the uncle and the nephew sprang out of the entrance they found themselves upon the outskirts of a dense crowd of people, who were swaying and tossing with excitement, their chins all thrown forward and their gaze directed upward. Following their eyes, the young officer saw a slight white form standing beneath every sensation save amazement.

From the upper balcony there was hanging head downward a man clad

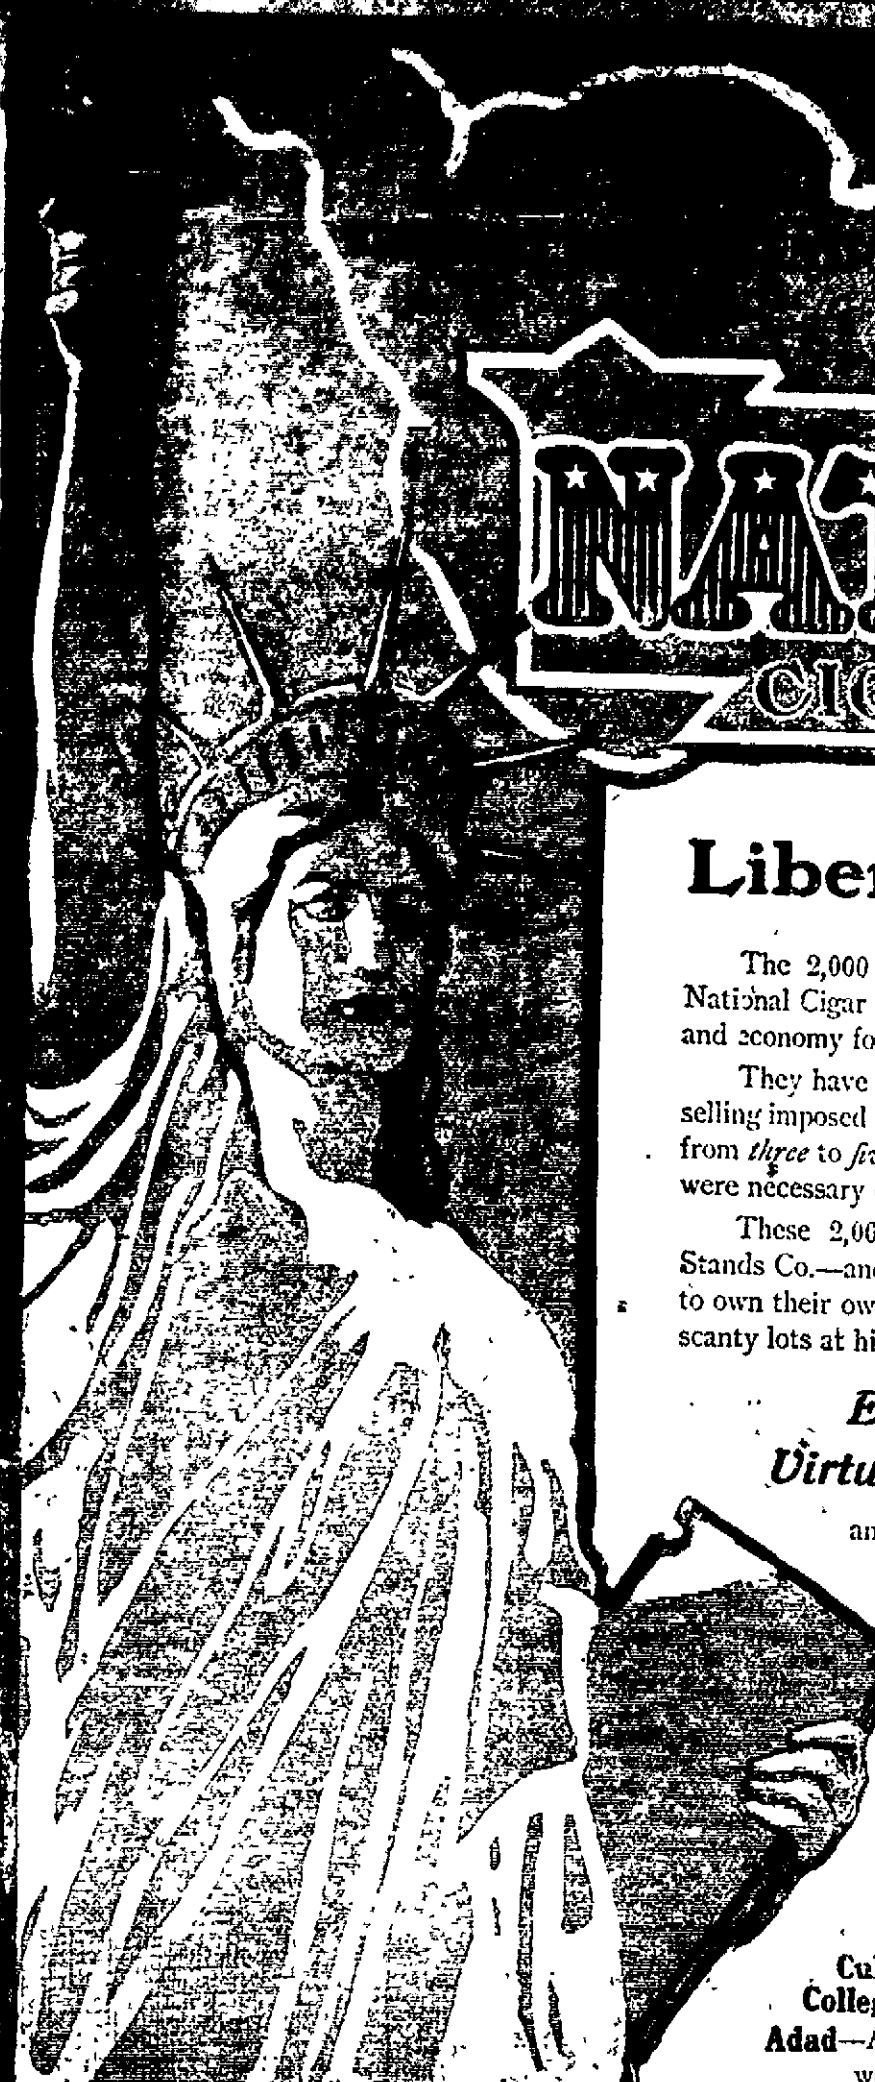

"Pull me up, son of the devil, pull me up!" he screamed.

In the bright blue coat and white breeches of one of the king's dragoons. His hat and wig had dropped off, and his close cropped head swung slowly backward and forward a good fifty feet above the pavement. His voice resounded over the whole place until the air was filled with his screams for mercy.

Above him at the corner of the balcony there stood a young man who leaned with a bent back over the balustrade and who held the dangling dragoon by either ankle. His face, however, was not directed toward his victim, but was half turned over his shoulder to confront a group of soldiers who were clustering at the long open window which opened out into the balcony.

Suddenly the crowd gave a groan of excitement. The young man had released his grip upon one of the ankles, and the dragoon hung now by one only, his other leg flapping helplessly in the air.

"Pull me up, son of the devil, pull me up!" he screamed. "Would you murder me, then? Help, good people, help!"

NATIONAL CIGAR STANDS

Liberty in Cigar-Selling

The 2,000 druggists who have united their cigar-buying power in the National Cigar Stands Co., have won liberty for themselves and gained safety and economy for their public.

They have freed themselves from the burdensome taxation on their cigar-selling imposed by the old-fashioned system of cigar distribution which exacted from three to five profits between producer and smoker, when two were all that were necessary or even fair.

These 2,000 druggists buy cigars as one concern—the National Cigar Stands Co.—and thereby become sufficiently powerful in the tobacco market to own their own brands and control their own factories, instead of buying in scanty lots at high prices from jobbers, as heretofore.

Every National Cigar Stand Virtually Produces Its Own Cigars and sells them nearer to the actual cost of production than has ever before been possible, because each store is a partner in and profits by all the advantages and powers possessed by this central organization.

The saving effected by cutting out all the middlemen's profits is well represented in the following brands on sale by the undersigned and all other druggists who carry the National's emblem in their windows.

Black and White—

Seed-and-Havana; as good as was ever bought at 3 for 25c.

Cuba-Roma—Clear Havana; Cuban leaf, 3 for 25c. grade.

College Days—Best domestic cigar ever sold at 6 for 25c.

Adad—A first-class Domestic cigar, presenting superior workmanship 7 for 25c.

Stirling Castle—Fine, clear Havana cigar, 10c. quality.

La Idalia—A choice clear Havana in a number of sizes. 3 for 25 and up.

CALLS REPUBLICANS NAMES

The local Democratic chattering comes forth and brands all Republicans as either "saloonskeepers, spittoon cleaners, or negroes." Sweet honey will probably be used, Mr. Republican, when they or one of their candidates approaches you this fall for your vote. The trip to Columbus was evidently too much for Balaam for his vituperation knows no end and his excuses for the turning down of the temperance plank are pathetic. He admits that the convention "let the bars down," yes, let the bars down easy.

THE CUBAN WAR.

It may be accepted as a certainty that the present government of Cuba will not be overthrown by a revolution. The incipient insurrection which recently was started by a few disaffected persons in the island republic is doomed to failure, not only because it has no decent principle back of it, but because it is supported by no material strength.

If it had both, however, it yet would collapse eventually, for, if the Cuban government itself were unable to cope with it, the United States would step forward and put down the revolution, either by moral suasion or by physical force. In other words, the United States will not permit the Palma government to be overthrown. In a sense, as it is viewed by the Roosevelt administration, this government is responsible for the Cuban government to the other nations of the world. The government established by President Palma has entered upon certain obligations to the civilized powers of the world and the American government proposes to see to it that those obligations are kept. In addition, it means much to the United States that a stable government should be maintained in Cuba. That island is a sort of gate-way to the Panama canal zone and his government could not afford, under the circumstances, to have it rent as under by a revolution and its present government, excellent in all respects and particularly friendly to America, put in jeopardy.

Should the revolution become at all serious, there is no doubt that the United States would dispatch troops to the island to support the Palma government. The situation has not become serious. While the officials of the State Department are watching it closely, they are firmly of opinion that the Palma government will be able to quell the disturbance without extraordinary difficulty.

ASHBROOK IS ARTFUL DODGER

Shouts "Pattison" But Votes The Other Way Always.

(Newark American)

The following communication from a Pattison Democrat who was present at the Democratic state convention and witnessed the vote on the nomination of resolutions, shows what an artful dodger William Ashbrook is especially on the liquor question.

Editor American Tribune—At last the artful dodger has come out into the open and the temperance voters of the Seventeenth district know where to locate William A. Ashbrook. In the great contest in the Democratic state convention between the progressive Democracy of the commonwealth and muschickism, William A. recorded his vote in favor of no further temperance legislation by the Democrats of the Buckeye state. This in spite of the fact that this great total county is temperance to the core and Ashbrook is a member of the house of representatives by the grace of the temperance voters of the county. Most people can be fooled once but not twice, and Mr. Ashbrook will hear from the rural Democrats of this district at the coming election. Muschick Democracy is a dull pupil. Notwithstanding the late Governor Pattison carried this county by a splendid majority in a straight-out fight against the saloon power. Eleven out of the thirteen delegates to the state convention voted to placate the liquor power and slapped the independent voter in the face, and some of those delegates make pretense of being against the saloon. It will only be a little time until they will again be seeking the favor of temperance voters. Let those who believed in what Pattison stood for, "stand pat" and rebuke these men who are enemies of progressive Democracy.

Boiler Exploded.

Marion, O., Aug. 24.—The big power plant of the Marion Railway, Light and Power company was wrecked by the explosion of a 300 horse-power boiler, injuring five men, two perhaps fatally. Charles Dutton, 21, and Gottlieb Trefz, 48, were buried in the ruins of the walls. Both are badly crushed. G. F. Dutton, father of the former and Bert Riley, both firemen; William McCall, engineer, and Howard Ransdell, chief engineer, were also injured. Loss is estimated at $50,000.

Battled With Burglars.

Galion, O., Aug. 24.—After having been shot six times by masked burglars, C. S. Bittner, a saloonkeeper, staggered to the telephone and notified the police, after which he fainted from loss of blood. He is in a critical condition. Bittner had a desperate encounter with the robbers, and struck one of them a terrific blow in the face with a beer glass. The robbers secured $250 and a gold watch and escaped.

Sheriff Fatally Injured.

Wooster, O., Aug. 24.—Armstrong Brown, sheriff of Wayne county, it is believed, sustained fatal internal injuries. While Brown was riding horseback a friend came along and playfully hit the horse with a whip, the horse jumped, the halter broke and Brown, who is a very large heavy man, was thrown off, landing on his shoulders and back. Surgeons believe that the injuries will cause death.

Ran Into Funeral.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 21.—While a funeral procession of six carriages was proceeding on the way to a cemetery a car crashed into the front carriage, containing the body of an infant. Six persons in the carriage were thrown out and the coffin was hurled to the sidewalk. Five members of the funeral party were hurt. Michael J. Lutheran was probably fatally injured.

Feared the Mafia.

Columbus, O., Aug. 24.—Preferring death to the relentless pursuit of the Mafia, Anjelico Domiani, 39, an Italian, living at Dayton, tried to kill himself here. He is at a hospital in a critical condition and may die. "I thought I might as well kill myself as let some one else kill me," explained Domiani to the police.

Gloom or Ginger?

Both Are Found Lurking in Your Breakfast, Dinner and Supper.

Not many people realize that the easiest way to affect the brain is through the stomach. The most common illustration of this is the result of drinking whiskey or any intoxicating drink. The same is true as to article of food.

And you have probably at times eaten something that lay like a lump of lead on your stomach. You can't forget how it makes you feel—craggy, uncomfortable and peevish.

That's because everything that affects the stomach affects the brain! If your stomach feels good, you will. But not everything will "have a happy effect on the brain. Pie won't. Neither will grease or fat. That's because there is no nourishment in them, they simply create heat but no strength. They make the stomach work overtime, make you dreary, and your brain foggy.

Nature has made the cereals to supply the brain and muscle of the world. The most intensely nourishing cereals are wheat and barley. By eating these you get the greatest amount of strength and blood-fibre it is possible to get from any food in the world.

That's what Hardyfood is made of—wheat and malted barley. Every particle of indigestible material found in them is thrown out, and there is left nothing but the very life of the grain—the purest wheat and barley.

You can eat Hardyfood for breakfast, dinner of supper, or noonday luncheon with cream, and it will taste delicious.

Often you sit at table and don't know what you want. Just eat Hardyfood. It will satisfy that peculiar craving in your stomach, make you feel as though you had had a "delicious, delicious meal, ad without any of the bad after-effects. It will make your stomach feel fine. It will make your brain feel clear, and you will smile and be good natured. That's the object. Smiles flirt with success. Hardyfood builds brain, bone, raven and nerve, because it contains "vital."

You can't get muscle from a tenderloin steak; you can't remember things any better by eating ham. These things make fat—all fat and no brain.

Hardyfood gives the maximum of nerve and brain force, and demands the minimum of digestion. You don't need a stomach to digest it.

It will make you feel good all over. It is the life of the whole family. Buy Hardyfood of any grocer for 10c a package.

"Make Hay While the Sun Shines."

There is a lesson in the work of the thrifty farmer. He knows that the bright sunshine may last but a day and he prepares for the showers which are so liable to follow. So it should be with every household. Dysentery, diarrhoea and cholera morbus may attack some member of the home without warning. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which is the best known medicine for these diseases, should always be kept at hand, as immediate treatment is necessary, and delay may prove fatal. For sale by C. E. Anderson, Drug and Book Store, Coshocton, O., and everywhere.

We Tell

We have nothing to conceal! No secrets to hide! We publish the formulas of all our medicines. You will find these in Ayer's Almanac for 1906. If you do not have a copy we will gladly send you one. Then show the formulas to your doctor. If he does not approve, then do not buy; if he approves, then buy, and keep these standard family medicines on hand.

Ayer's Sore Throat Remedy, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, Ayer's Eucalypti, Ayer's Kidney Pills.

MALARIA AN INSIDIOUS Foe TO HEALTH

Malaria is an atmospheric poison which we unconsciously breathe into our lungs through the impure air arising from low, marshy places, stagnant ponds, damp cellars, sewer pipes, improperly ventilated houses, decaying vegetable matter, etc. Day after day these germs and poisons are taken into the lungs, and as the blood passes through them it becomes infected with the poison and in its circulation distributes the microbes of disease to all parts of the body. Malaria is a very insidious disease; it gives no warning of its coming until the circulation is filled with the poison and this foe to health has the system at its mercy. The blood becomes polluted, thin and weak and its slow, irregular circulation fails to properly nourish and strengthen the body. Then the entire system is attacked, and if the germs and poisons of malaria are allowed to remain the strongest constitution will break down. No one can feel well when the system is in a malarial condition; the vitality is weak, the appetite poor, digestion deranged, the complexion grows sallow and the entire body feels the effects of the poison. Malaria must be removed from the system through the circulation and the only medicine that can accomplish this is S. S. S. It not only cleanses the blood of all unhealthy, morbid matter, but destroys the germs, cures malaria and restores this vital fluid to a strong, healthy condition. S. S. S. is made of roots, herbs and barks combining purifying and tonic properties which keep the blood free of all poisons and the system in perfect condition. While destroying the germs of malaria and building up the weak, polluted blood S. S. S. gives tone and vigor to the entire system. Book on the blood and any medical advice without charge.

A Lazy Liver
May be only a tired liver, or a starved liver. It would be a stupid as well as a savage thing to beat a weary or starved man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging, torpid liver it is a great mistake to lash it with strong drastic drugs. A torpid liver is but an indication of an ill-nourished, enfeebled body whose organs are weary with overwork. Start with the stomach, and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in working order and see how quickly your liver will become active. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvelous cures of "liver trouble" by its wonderful control of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the normal activity of the stomach, increases the secretions of the blood-making glands, cleans the system from poisonous accumulations, and so it drives the liver of the burdens imposed upon it by the deflection of other organs.
If you have little or bad taste in the morning, poor or variable appetite, constipated bowels, flatulence, indigestion or irregular bowels, feel weak, easily tired, despondent, frequent headaches, pain or distress in "small of back," gnawing or distressed feeling in stomach, perhaps nausea, bitter or sour "rising" in throat after eating, and known symptoms of weak stomach and torpid liver, no medicine will relieve you more promptly or cure you more permanently than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Perhaps only a part of the above symptoms will be present at one time and yet point to torpid liver or biliousness and weak stomach. Avoid all hot bread and heavy, greasy, rich, and other indigestible food and take the Golden Medical Discovery "tea," and in a few days you will be vigorous and strong.
The "Discovery" is non-poisonous, non-alcoholic, is a glyceric extract of native medicinal roots with a full list of its ingredients printed on each bottle, capsule, and tablet under oath. Its harmful effects are endorsed and evoked by the most eminent medical writers of the age and are recommended to cure the diseases for which it is advised.
Don't accept a substitute of unknown composition for this non-secret medicine of known composition.

Want More Wages.
Manchester, England, Aug. 21.—The iron molders informed their employers in the engineering trade of Manchester and South Lancashire of their decision to strike Aug. 27 unless their demands for an immediate advance of 50 cents per week is conceded. The molders number only 1,600 men, but the strike would affect 40,000 skilled workmen and 60 firms. The men claim that the trade is enjoying great prosperity, while wages have not been increased for 10 years, during which the conditions of living have greatly altered, rents and the price of food having risen.

Individualism Versus Socialism

By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN, in Century Magazine

Copyright, 1906, by the Century Co.

THE words "individualism" and "socialism" define tendencies rather than concrete systems; for, as extreme individualism is not to be found under any form of government, so there is no example of socialism in full operation. All government being more or less socialistic, the contention, so far as this subject is concerned, is between those who regard individualism as ideal, to be approached as nearly as circumstances will permit, and those who regard a socialistic state as ideal, to be established as far and as fast as public opinion will allow.

The individualist believes that competition is not only a helpful, but a necessary, force in society, to be guarded and protected; the socialist regards competition as a hurtful force, to be entirely exterminated. It is not necessary to consider those who consciously take either side for reasons purely selfish; it is sufficient to know that on both sides there are those who with great earnestness and sincerity present their theories, convinced of their correctness and sure of the necessity for their application to human society.

As socialism is the newer doctrine, the socialist is often greeted with epithet and denunciation rather than with argument, but, as usual, it does not deter him. Martyrdom never kills a cause, as all history, political as well as religious, demonstrates.

Moral Passion Pervades Socialism.

No one can read socialistic literature without recognizing the "moral passion" that pervades it. The Russian club of Oakland, Cal., quotes with approval an editorial comment which asserts that the socialistic creed inspires a religious zeal and makes its followers enthusiasts in its propagation. It also quotes Professor Nitto of the University of Naples as asserting that "the morality that socialism teaches is by far superior to that of its adversaries," and it quotes Thomas Kirkup as declaring in the Encyclopedia Britannica that "the ethics of socialism are identical with those of Christianity."

It will be seen, therefore, that the socialists not only claim superiority in ethics, but attempt to appropriate Christ's teachings as a foundation for their creed. As the maintenance of their position would insure them ultimate victory, it is clear that the first battle between the individualist and the socialist must be in the field of ethics. No one who has faith in the triumph of the right (and who can count with vigor without such a faith?) can doubt that that which is ethically best will finally prevail in every department of human activity.

Best Means of Development.

Assuming that the highest aim of society is the harmonious development of the human race, physically, mentally and morally, the first question to decide is whether individualism or socialism furnishes the best means of securing that harmonious development. For the purpose of this discussion, individualism will be defined as the private ownership of the means of production and distribution where competition is possible, leaving to public ownership those means of production and distribution in which competition is practically impossible, and socialism will be defined as the collective ownership through the state of all the means of production and distribution.

One advocate of socialism defines it as "common ownership of natural resources and public utilities and the common operation of all industries for the public good." It will be seen that the definitions of socialism commonly in use include some things which cannot fairly be described as socialistic, and some of the definitions (like the last one, for instance) beg the question by assuming that the public operation of all industries will necessarily be for the general good. As the socialists agree in hostility to competition as a controlling force, and as individualists agree that competition is necessary for the well being of society, the fairest and most accurate line between the two schools can be drawn at the point where competition begins to be possible, both schools favoring public ownership where competition is impossible, but differing as to the wisdom of public ownership where competition can have free play.

Common Ground.

Much of the strength developed by socialism is due to the fact that socialists advocate certain reforms which individualists also advocate. Take, for illustration, the public ownership of waterworks. It is safe to say that a large majority of the people living in cities of any considerable size favor their public ownership—individualists because it is practically impossible to have more than one water system in a city, and socialists on the general ground that the government should own all the means of production and distribution. The sentiment in favor of municipal lighting plants is not yet so strong, and the sentiment in favor of public telephones and public street car lines is still less pronounced, but the same general principles apply to them, and individualists, without accepting the creed of socialism, can advocate the extension of municipal ownership to these utilities.

Then, too, some of the strength of socialism is due to its condemnation of abuses which, while existing under individualism, are not at all necessary to individualism—abuses which the individualists are as anxious as the socialists to remedy. It is not only consistent with individualism, but is a necessary implication of it, that the competing parties should be placed upon substantially equal footing for competition is not worthy of that name if one party is made artificially to fix the terms of the agreement, leaving the other with no choice but to submit to the terms presented. Individualists, for instance, can consistently advocate usury laws which fix the rate of interest to be charged, these laws being justified on the ground that the borrower and the lender do not stand upon an equal footing. Where the money lender is left free to take advantage of the necessities of the borrower, the so-called freedom of contract is really freedom to extort. Upon the same ground society can justify legislation against child labor and legislation limiting the hours of adult labor. One can believe in competition and still favor such limitations and restrictions as will make the competition real and effective. To advocate individualism it is no more necessary to excuse the abuses to which competition may lead than it is to defend the burning of a city because fire is essential to human comfort, or to praise a tempest because air is necessary to human life.

Man Needs the Spur of Competition.

WILLIAM J. BRYAN, FROM A LATE PHOTOGRAPH.

In comparing individualism with socialism, it is only fair to consider individualism when made as good as human wisdom can make it and then to measure it with socialism at its best. It is a common fault of the advocate to present his system, idealized, in contrast with his opponent's system at its worst, and it must be confessed that neither individualism nor socialism has been entirely free from this fault. In dealing with any subject we must consider man as he is or as he may reasonably be expected to become under the operation of the system proposed, and it is much safer to consider him as he is than to expect a radical change in his nature. Taking man as we find him, he needs, as individualists believe, the spur of competition. Even the socialists admit the advantage of rivalry within certain limits, but they would substitute altruistic for selfish motives. Just here the individualist and the socialist find themselves in antagonism. The former believes that altruism is a spiritual quality which defies governmental definition, while the socialist believes that altruism will take the place of selfishness under an enforced collectivism.

Ruskin's statement that "government and cooperation are in all things and eternally the laws of life; man and competition eternally and in all things the laws of death," is often quoted by socialists, but, as generalizations are apt to be, it is more comprehensive than clear. There is a marked distinction between voluntary co-operation upon terms mutually satisfactory and compulsory co-operation upon terms agreeable to a majority. Many of the attempts to establish voluntary co-operation have failed because of disagreement as to the distribution of the common property or income, and those which have succeeded best have usually rested upon a religious rather than upon an economic basis.

Co-operation Must Be Voluntary.

In any attempt to apply the teachings of Christ to an economic state, it must be remembered that his religion begins with a regeneration of the human heart and with an ideal of life which makes service the measure of greatness. Tolstol, who popularizes socialism as a spiritual reform, contends that the beginning of the individualism is with the individual's important thing, not that the socialistic ideal, but that the socialistic ideal is a spiritual ideal.

It is hard, easier to realize of a voluntary association between persons than to work together according to the direction of a majority to the successful operation of a system enforced by law, which is the socialistic principle. The attempt to impose upon a man a system of law which he has never been helped to either government or religion, and it is not at all certain that human nature can yet be trusted to use the instrumentalities of government to enforce purposes alien to the controlling principle. The attempt to impose upon a man a system of law which he has never been helped to either government or religion, and it is not at all certain that human nature can yet be trusted to use the instrumentalities of government to enforce purposes alien to the controlling principle.

Human Selfishness Ever Present.

The government, whether it leans toward individualism or toward socialism, must be influenced by human nature, and its administration will reflect the weaknesses and imperfections of those who control it. Emerson declares that the expression of the universal conscience in history is the nearest approach to the voice of God, and he is right in paying this tribute to the wisdom of the masses; and yet we cannot overlook the fact that this universal conscience must find governmental expression through frail human beings who yield to the temptation to serve their own interests at the expense of their fellows. Will socialism purge the individual of selfishness or bring a nearer approach to justice?

Justice requires that each individual shall receive from society a reward proportionate to his contribution to society. Can the state, acting through officials, make this appropriation better than it can be made by competition has been tested by centuries of experience. Under it there have been progress and development. That it has not been free from evil is not a sufficient condemnation. The same rain that furnishes the necessary moisture for the growing crop sometimes floods the land and destroys the harvest; the same sun that warms the things about it sometimes scorches the things it warms. The good things given us by our heavenly Father often, if not always, have an admixture of evil, to the lessening of which the intelligence of man must be constantly directed. Just now there are signs of an ethical awakening which is likely to result in reforming some of the evils which have sprung from individualism, but which can be corrected without any impairment of the principle.

Altruism Necessary.

The individualist, while contending that the largest and best development of the individual and hence of the entire population is best secured by full and free competition, made fair by law, believes in a spiritual force which acts beyond the sphere of the state. After the government has secured to the individual, through competition, a reward proportionate to his effort, religion admonishes him of his stewardship and of his obligation to use his greater strength, his larger ability and his richer reward in the spirit of brotherhood. Under individualism we have seen a constant increase in altruism. The fact that the individual can select the objects of his benevolence and devote his means to the causes that appeal to him has given an added stimulus to his endeavors. Would this stimulus be as great under socialism?

Probably the nearest approach that we have to the socialistic state today is to be found in the civil service. If the civil service develops more usefulness and more altruistic devotion to the general welfare than private employment does, the fact is yet to be discovered. This is not offered as a criticism of civil service in so far as civil service may require examinations to ascertain fitness for office, but it is simply a reference to a well known fact—viz, that a life position in the government service, which separates one from the lot of the average producer of wealth, has given no extraordinary stimulus to higher development.

It is not necessary to excuse or to defend a competition carried to a point where it creates a submerged fifth, or even a submerged tenth, to recognize the beneficial effect of struggle and discipline upon the men and women who have earned the highest places in industry, society and government.

A Friendly Rivalry.

There should be no unfriendliness between the honest individualist and the honest socialist; both seek that which they believe to be best for society. The socialist, by pointing out the abuses of individualism, will assist in their correction. At present private monopoly is putting upon individualism an undeserved odium, and it behooves the individualist to address himself energetically to this problem in order that the advantages of competition may be restored to industry. And the duty of immediate action is made more imperative by the fact that the socialist is inclined to support the monopoly, in the belief that it will be easier to induce the government to take over an industry after it has passed into the hands of a few men. The trust magnates and the socialists unite in declaring monopoly to be an economic development, the former hoping to retain the fruits of monopoly in private hands, the latter expecting the ultimate appropriation of the benefits of monopoly by the government. The individualist, on the contrary, contends that the consolidation of industries ceases to be an economic advantage when competition is eliminated, and he believes further that no economic advantage which could come from the monopolization of all the industries in the hands of the government could compensate for the stifling of individual initiative and independence. And the individualists who thus believe stand for a morality and for a system of ethics which they are willing to measure against the ethics and morality of socialism.

Clubs and Tipping.

In clubs the best service is obtained where tipping is forbidden. In poorly conducted clubs tipping is allowed, but in the best conducted ones a member found guilty of tipping a servant would be liable to expulsion. The majority of clubs in America are luxurious. Wines, food and tobacco cost as much in them as in fashionable restaurants. In these clubs, which have little reason for existence, tipping is permissible. But in England the club is not a luxury, but an economy. The English founded the club, and an Englishman is a clubman because he can get at his club a good dinner, a good bottle of wine and a good cigar at less than half the price he would pay at the Carlton or the Trocadero. In no English club is tipping ever countenanced. Men have been expelled from English clubs for habitual tipping. In many American clubs it has been found that a no tipping rule, on the whole, bettered the service.

NOTED CRITIC IS OWNER OF SHOW

Remarkable Person is Young Dr. March Of Canton.

The Canton newspaper man, critic, politician, actor, capitalist and man of name he was in Coshocton Thursday and will return Monday. Such a man is Dr. Harry March, of Canton head of the popular comedy company that plays at the local playhouse all next week.

Dr. March was for several years Washington correspondent for Ohio newspapers and then a political critic on the Washington Times. He is a native of Canton and in his native town of Canton was recently elected mayor. While his practice is sufficient to make him wealthy all his time, yet the small of the political canvas figures in his monthly old story and he is one of the few men that have put the Americans on the stage.

"Which is assuming the role of a good agent," said the doctor to The Age man "I want you to be my business manager. I think you will be pleased. We are endeavoring to please the public and at the same time to make high priced people and clever boys."

Thursday night the comedy company's play by charming Pollock, who dramatized "The Pitt" and has written some very clever plays. Pollock is general press manager for the Schenck's new and gets a salary of $100 a week for 52 weeks a year, to say nothing of royalties, etc., on books and plays.

ZANESVILLE TEAM IS SOLD

Marion, Ohio, Gets The Moguls--Zanesville Wonders Why.

(Zanesville Times-Recorder)
The Zanesville franchise in the O. & P. league has practically been sold to Marion Ohio. This statement was verified by Charles H. Morton and partially admitted by W. O. Anderson last night. President Morton stated that the franchise, together with the players, had been sold to Marion parties, subject to the approval of the board of directors of the league and that a vote on this matter was even now being taken. Mr. Anderson denied that the deal had been completed but stated Marion parties had been given a 16-day option on the club. He would not say when this option expired.

It has been impossible to obtain any exact information relative to this matter, which has been uppermost in the minds of the fans. As a last resort President C. H. Morton was communicated with by telegraph last night and his reply was as given above. Mr. Anderson has denied this reported sale on several occasions, probably because of the fact that the deal had not been entirely completed. In speaking of the matter last night Mr. Anderson stated that the club and franchise had practically been on the market for the past month. He said that he understood there were Zanesville parties who were desirous of obtaining control of the club, but these persons had not come forward with any offer. For that matter, he said, the club is still on the market for Zanesville capital.

AMUSEMENTS

The Vogel City Minstrel show delighted a capacity house at the Sixth Street theatre Thursday evening. The opening scene of the "Maiden Palace" was the most magnificent that has ever been produced on a local stage. The songs were all catchy and up to date, and every singer acquitted himself creditably.

"Let Me Down Easy" sang by Tyrell, the famous monologist, undoubtedly the hit of the evening. The second part was equal to the first in most respects, and every one regretted the final fall of the curtain.

Bids Turned Down.

For the third time the commissioners of Tuscarawas county are advertising for bids for the furnishing of all material and labor for the building complete of a new school house and chapel at the Children's Home. Plans and specifications for the proposed building are on file with Auditor Donaher.

The time fixed for the opening of bids is 1 o'clock, Sept. 1. An attempt was first made to secure bids for rebuilding the old structure which was partly burned last winter, but no bids were received. Bids were then asked for on a new building, but the three bids which were received were not satisfactory to the commissioners and a third attempt is being made.—Dennison Paragaph.

To Become Army Officer

This is an excellent picture of Miss Belle McCall, the Coshocton young lady who has gone to New York to enter the Salvation Army training school, to fit herself to become an officer of that great organization. Miss McCall was attracted to the possibilities of Army work when Assistant Brindley first came here more than a year ago and at once entered into it with zeal and spirit, becoming one of the most energetic workers. Her friends predict for her a splendid future in her chosen work. The Age is indebted to the "Young Soldier" publication for the use of the picture here.

WHEAT CROP IS A MONSTER

Hay-Rakers Instead of Muck-Rakers-Needed In Ohio.

The Ohio wheat crop has been cut and is now being threshed and sacked ready for the market. There are those who have kept themselves informed on current events by following the muckrakers who have said that there is no great business today in which there is not dishonesty and which ought not be investigated, says the Cleveland Leader. Will these skeptics please turn their attention to the wheat crop of the state of Ohio, examine some of the figures and then revise their opinions? Will they please also to remember that the wheat crop is only one of the many industries of the farm? The growing of wheat is diversified by raising corn and oats, live stock and poultry, vegetables, berries and fruits, tobacco in some sections and melons. But aside from this of Ohio calls to the attention some astonishing figures.

Annually the farmers of Ohio plant close to 2,000,000 acres of wheat. It will run close to the maximum this year. The world uses anywhere from thirteen or fourteen to twenty-five bushels to the acre. This year the government's bureau of statistics, taking information just hand from the farmers, estimates the crop at from 11,000,000 to 17,000,000 bushels. All agree that the average is about conservatively and say that an estimate of 15,000,000 bushels is clearly within the possibilities. There are many grades of wheat, but in Ohio what is known as No. 2 red wheat is most generally grown. At the present time this is selling around seventy-six cents a bushel. Scarcely in other countries is likely to cause even higher prices, but again, being conservative, the price is to be named at seventy-five cents a bushel. This will place the total value of the Ohio wheat crop at $11,250,000 to $12,750,000. And yet there has never been a suggestion that this enormous business ought to be investigated by the government because there is no trust. A subsequent rise in price is likely to raise the valuation of $37,000,000 or $48,000,000.

TROLLEY LINE MAY COME OUR WAY

The purchase of the Mt. Vernon power plant by Dr. J. Hissey and associates causes the Zanesville Times-Recorder to go into raptures over the assurance it thinks it brings of a new electric line for that city to run from Marietta through Zanesville to Mt. Vernon. Perhaps the Zanesville paper is right, and if it is Coshocton is interested for the line from Mt. Vernon to Zanesville would enhance its stock greatly even if traveling a little farther, by building by way of Coshocton. Speaking of the project the Times-Recorder says: It is planned to join the Mt. Vernon electric railway with the proposed Zanesville & Muskingum Valley Traction Co., recently incorporated by Dr. Hissey and his associates. This latter is proposed to extend from this city to Marietta, following the Muskingum river bank. It is believed, and not denied by

Dr. Hissey, that he will project an electric railway from this city to Mt. Vernon. Dr. Hissey, it is understood has become associated with some of the most able capitalists of Ohio and of late he has secured the consideration of many of his projects with Wall street interests. Dr. Hissey, it will be remembered, proposed and saw almost to actual completion the newly finished South eastern Ohio Railway, Light & Power company. This road has done and is doing much for Zanesville. The new line proposed from Mt. Vernon to Marietta is expected to do even more for this city. In the deal made known yesterday concerning the Mt. Vernon properties Dr. Hissey is said to have given $100,000 for the railway and the light companies' interests. The purchase was made from the Jackson O'Neil

All Like The Age Idea

In speaking of the failure of the Coshocton county league, The Age says: Another amateur league, that is thought would furnish a satisfactory brand of base ball, is now being proposed.

The towns in the proposed league are Coshocton, Dresden, Newcomers-town, Denison, Canal Dover and Millersburg. Other towns which could be admitted to the league are Mt. Vernon, Zanesville, Crescents, Newark, Ulica, Londonville, etc.

The league would be held strictly amateur and games to be played only on Saturdays and holidays. A six, eight or even ten club circuit picked from the above named cities it is thought by local fans would be the "candy" league and the project will probably be pushed by several well known local sports during the winter.—Londonville Advocate.
